OF

No. 4 (HAZARA) MOUNTAIN BATTERY, PUNJAB FRONTIER FORCE.

AFTER the 1st Punjab War the district of Hazára was given to Sardár Chattar Singh to settle, and Captain James Abbott accompanied him as Political Agent.

On the commencement of the 2nd Sikh War, at the outbreak of Sardár Shere Singh and the commencement of the siege of Mooltan, Sardár Chattar Singh broke out into revolt, and withdrew his troops to the assistance of his son, Sardár Shere Singh, leaving a small force, fully equipped and provisioned, under the command of Thánadár Nand Singh, to hold the Fort at Haripur. Thánadár Nand Singh with his garrison of 2 guns (a 9-pr. and 4-pr.) and 800 men kept the fort till the close of the 2nd Sikh War.

On the outbreak of Sardár Chattar Singh, Captain Abbott at once raised the country against the Sikhs, in which he had little difficulty, as the latter had not thoroughly subdued the district, being obliged to collect the revenue by force of arms.

The disposition of the Sikh troops was as follows :—

Head-quarters under Sardár Chattar Singh, consisting of 4 Regiments 1,000 strong, and 6 or 8 guns, including Colonel Canara's battery.

At Gandian in the Pakhli Valley, 2 Regiments of Infantry, 1 of Cavalry and some guns.

There were also some Sikh troops at Ráwalpindi.

At this time the representatives of the British Government or Sikh Darbár were Captains Abbott and Nicholson.

As soon as Captain Abbott had raised the country, he surrounded the Gandian cantonment, fought a losing fight with Sardár Chattar Singh in the Abbott-abad Pass, and was forced to retreat over the hills to Shirwán. He was soon back again, however, to worry Sardár Chattar Singh, attacking him near the Mangli Ravine, on his retirement with the rescued cantonment of Gandian back to Haripur.

When Sardár Chattar Singh decided on leaving to assist his son, Sardár Shere Singh, and left Thánadár Nand Singh in command of the Fort of Haripur, the position of parties was as follows: Major Abbott with the people of the country, aided by a reinforcement of 4 guns from Guláb Singh, the Mahárája of Kashmir (small guns, about $1\frac{1}{2}$ to 2-prs., mounted on carriages with 3 wheels and carried on mules), kept the garrison of Haripur from leaving the Fort, but was powerless to do anything more.

With the 4 guns of Guláb Singh came 40 gunners. Major Abbott, apparently doubting their loyalty, raised the strength of the Battery up to 80 by recruiting 40 additional men from the people of the country, and this was the way the Battery was raised.

Jamadár Khán Beg with half the Sikh gunners and 20 men of the new enlistments and 2 guns were for a long time at Mangli Ravine in support of the 3 Headmen, who were hemming in the Sikh troops cantoned at Gandian, and the remainder of the Battery was with Major Abbott under the command of Jamadár Násir.

After the battle of Gujrát, Thánadár Nand Singh gave up the Fort of Haripur, and the 40 men raised by Captain Abbott were put in charge of the Fort guns, and the Kashmir guns returned to Kashmir.

The Kashmir gunners were paid by Captain Abbott, and it is said that Mahárája Guláb Singh hearing this declined to pay them on his own account for the year they were with Abbott. The guns never came into action, as Captain Abbott had too much of a running fight of it, besides which he could not trust the Sikh gunners.

A battery of Sheikh Imám-ud-dín's Artillery being encamped at Pind Dádan Khan, Captain Abbott applied for 20 trained gunners. These were sent to him under charge of Sa'át Ali (who was subsequently promoted to Subadár). Among the 20 there was only one Hindu, the remainder being Muhammadans of either Hindustán or the Punjab. For some 6 months after the arrival of these men from Pind Dádan Khan they remained doing nothing at Haripur, not being amalgamated with the men in the Fort.

When Colonel Abbott issued orders offering discharge with gratuity to such as wished, Jamadár Khán Beg reported that the whole of his 20 men wished to go. A parade was therefore called, when all save 4 stated their desire to go. Colonel Abbott having occasion to think that this was done at the instigation of Jamadár Khán Beg, summarily dismissed them and confined Khán Beg, ultimately discharging him. The men of Sheikh Imám-ud-dín's Artillery were amalgamated with the remainder, and a few recruits were picked up from the Sikh troops who had been serving in the Fort under Thánadár Nand Singh. Sa'át Khán was appointed Subadár, and Násir Khán Jamadár, and the establishment of the Battery was fixed as follows :—

May 1849.

1 Subadár on Rs. 67-0 a month.

1 Jamadár „ 24-8 „

3 Havildárs „ 10-0 „

3 Naicks „ 9-0 „

38 Gunners „ 7-0 „

2 Buglers „ 11-0 „

Ordnance—2 Sikh guns, 1 19-pr. and 1 6-pr.

1850.

The organisation of the Battery remained as above till September 1850, when 6 3-prs. were received from the Arsenal at Ferozepore, owing to which the Gunner Company was raised to 9 per gun, and the pay of the Non-Commissioned Officers was increased as follows :—

Havildárs from Rs. 10 to Rs. 14.

Naicks „ 9 „ 12.

At the same time 44 syces were entertained at a pay of Rs. 5 per mensem, one of whom was called a Darogah (for which he received no extra pay).

The increase of the Gunner Company to 54 was chiefly obtained by recruiting in the district, although some 6 Sikhs were entertained.

1851.

In 1851, 2 elephants and 44 mules were entertained.

On the 2nd April 1851 Lieutenant Pearse was appointed to the charge of the Hazára Mountain Train in addition to his duties as Assistant Commissioner. He received no pay for his additional appointment, his duties being not to equip the Mountain Train, but simply to carry out the orders of the Deputy Commissioner.

The purchase of mules and general organisation seems to have been carried out by Major Abbott, and the enlistment of recruits entrusted to Lieutenant Pearse.

The gun, trail and wheel and 2 pairs of boxes per gun were carried on the mules when the Battery went on service, or when occasion needed ; the extra ammunition was carried in 20 pairs of boxes on hired mules, each box containing 16 round shot and 4 case.

The saddles and pads were all made up in the Battery, and seem to have been much heavier than those of a subsequent date.

The Battery formed a portion of the force in the 1st Hassanzai Expedition. This expedition was brought about as follows :—

After the annexation in 1849 a preventive line was established along the left bank of the Indus, as far as British jurisdiction extended, to preclude Trans-Indus salt from passing into the Punjab. In 1851 this line extended 5 miles beyond

Torbela to a point on the Indus, where Khán of Amb. Jehándád's Cis-Indus lands commence.

The Uncovenanted Head of the Customs Department, accompanied by one of his patrols, proceeded, against the advice of the District Officer, Major Abbott, to reconnoitre the border, with a view to eventual extension of the preventive line. Returning back, having marched up the border, Mr. Carne dismissed all attendants except a few of the men belonging to his own department. Shortly afterwards he was attacked, whilst still within Jehándád's territory, by an armed force of Hassanzais, and both the gentlemen were murdered.

As the murder occurred in his territory, Jehándád was called to account, and he at once delivered up such Hassanzais as he could find in his territory as hostages to the British authorities. The Hassanzais retaliated by making war upon him, laid waste his border villages, and stirred up his subjects to rebel, till at last he was reduced to considerable straits. In December 1852 and January 1853 an expeditionary force, accompanied by Colonel Mackeson, the Commissioner, marched to the border, and the Battery took part in it as follows :—

Three guns were left at Haripur and two guns accompanied the attacking column, which consisted of the Guides, 1st Sikh Infantry and some Police, the whole under the command of Colonel R. Napier, Bengal Engineers (now Lord Napier of Magdala).

The force, composed of regular troops, levies and some of the Kashmir troops, was divided into two columns. The Kashmir troops and Levies under Major Abbott attacked by way of Shunglai.

1853.

The regular troops under Colonel Napier advanced up the Chutta spur, which presented a series of rising points, on which the enemy were strongly posted, and had to be driven out by the guns. They were turned out, and followed up by the Infantry, supported by the guns, till the crest was reached. There the enemy rallied, and drove back our men to the guns, who again rushed forward, seized and retained the crest. The guns throughout were directed by Sa'át Alí, Subadár, and Jamadár Násir.

The force was entirely successful in its operations. The villages were destroyed, and the grain stored up in them was burnt.

Jamadár Nassir is dismissed.

He was in command of 2 guns forming a portion of the escort of the Commissioner, Colonel Edwardes, en route for Bálakot. On arrival at Mansehra, the Darogah sent for grain and got involved in a dispute with a Mounted Policeman. It appears that instead of making ready-money payments on account of grain purchased, it was the custom for the Native Officer to give a receipt for the quantity of grain purchased. This receipt was produced at the tahsíl or treasury and was taken as a cheque and cashed. The Darogah complained to the Jamadár about the Policeman. The Jamadár sent 8 or 10 gunners, seized the Policeman, and had him tied up to a gun. After some discussion with the officers of the Police, the matter was squared and the man was let go. Then the Jamadár, fearing a complaint would be sent against him by the Police, anticipated them by complaining of the Police. The Commissioner at that time was not with the escort. On investigation the facts came to light. The Jamadár was ordered to point out the gunners who had seized and tied up the Policeman. He either pleaded ignorance, or refused to do so, and was summarily dismissed, as was also one Havildár by name Ghulám Muhammad.

The Jamadár's services were : 1st Hassanzai Expedition, and the several engagements with the Sikhs in the Hazára Dirtrict during the 2nd Sikh War under Major Abbott and Captain Nicholson.

Jamadár Krishna, a supernumerary, was brought in to replace Jamadár Násir. 1854.

Subadár Sá'at Ali is pensioned. 1855.

War services : 1st Hassanzai Expedition of 1852 and siege of Mooltan 1848.

Subadár Azím Beg, a Bombardier of a regular Battery, No. 5 Troop, Royal Horse Artillery (Native) originally sent to instruct the gunners of the Mountain Train, and then sent back to his own Battery, is again sent for and made Subadár, but, strange to say, is retained as Bombardier in his old Battery.

Letter to the Chief Commissioner from the Military Secretary, dated 13th January, lays down that the composition of the Battery is to be half Muhammadan and half Hindu. Jany. 1855.

Punjab Irregular Force Orders, B. O. 60, 7th December 1855, directs that Patháns are not to be enlisted in the Artillery of the Force. Decr. 1855.

Lieutenant F. Batt, Bengal Artillery, is appointed to the charge of the Hazára Mountain Train (Secretary to the Government of India letter No. 1438, dated 11th March 1856), but 11th March 1856.

Military Secretary to the Chief Commissioner informs him that he will be under the directions of the Deputy Commissioner of Hazára as was his predecessor Lieutenant Pearse, the officer first in charge of the Mountain Train,—vide enclosed copy of Military Secretary's letter to Major J. Abbott, Deputy Commissioner, Hazára, No. 483, dated 2nd April 1851, paragraph 2.—“The Board remark that the Government have not deputed Lieutenant Pearse to equip the Hazára Mountain Train, but have placed him under your orders in all respects, to carry out such instructions as may be given him.”

1856. Mountain Train ordered to Abbottabad from Haripur.

26th May. Acting Subadár Azím Beg receives orders to join his troop at Hoshiárpur (the 5th Troop, 1st Brigade).

31st May. The Hazára Mountain Train, consisting of—

63-Pr. guns,
54 Privates,
44 Muleteers,
2 Elephants,
(Number of mules not stated), is recommended to be transferred to the Punjab Frontier Force by the Chief Commissioner in his letter No. C-126, dated 31st May 1856.

18th Sept.

Sadut Khán of No. 4, or Garrison Company of Artillery, is transferred to Hazára Mountain Train as Subadár.

Jamadár Krishna is remanded to No. 4, or Garrison Company, as supernumerary.

Jamadár Pír Bakhsh promoted from Havildár.

Jamadár Krishna directed to remain under arrest in the lines of the Hazára Mountain Train, pending the decision of the several cases against him in the court of the Deputy Commissioner of Hazára.

Major Becher, Deputy Commissioner of Hazára, encloses 5th August. to Lieutenant Batt the Commissioner of Pesháwar's (Colonel H. B. Edwardes) letter No. 232 of 1st August 1856, conveying the authority of the Government for the transfer of the Mountain Train to the command of Brigadier Chamberlain, Commanding the Punjab Irregular Frontier Force.

The two elephants attached to the Battery placed at the disposal of Officer Commanding 1st Sikh Infantry for conveyance of Sikhs. 4th Decr.

July.

The following story of the pardon of one of the mutineers has passed into a tradition in the Battery :—

Among the captives brought in by the men of Kaghán was a woman having both a husband and brother among the prisoners. It fell to the lot of her brother to be blown away from a gun at Abbott-abad. Her husband was marched off to Haripur, and his wife accompanied him, no longer a prisoner, but intent on sharing her husband's fate, which design she kept to herself. On the day of execution when the prisoners were all brought out to die, she made her way to him and refused to leave him. "I cannot leave my husband," she said; "let me die with him." The spectators, amongst them some influential chiefs of Hazára, came forward, and entreated the Deputy Commissioner Colonel Becher to spare her. "You war not with women," they said, "yet if you kill the man you kill the woman also." The man was released.

Official intimation is received of the fall of Delhi.

22nd Septr.

The Battery is inspected by Major-General Cotton. Three guns only and 2 howitzers are detached with General Cotton's force to Mansehra.

4th Novr.

1858.
28th Feby.

Twelve Sikh Artillery recruits are transferred to the battery from the Hoshiárpur levy.

26th April.

The battery under command of Lieutenant Batt leaves Abbott-abad and arrives at Anora on the Indus, 2nd May 1858, when one howitzer was left at the fort of Rockgarh, and crossed over with 2 howitzers and 1 3-pounder gun to the right bank of the Indus on 4th May 1858. The 3-pounder gun is left in the village of Sittána, and Lieutenant Batt with 2 howitzers and a company of the 6th Punjab Infantry are ordered by Major Becher to pass through the village, and to take up a position lower down and distant about 900 yards from a hill occupied by the enemy. As the troops arrived the enemy retired.

The skirmishers of the 6th Punjab Infautry pressed up the hill, the Battery remaining in position till recalled at noon. The next day the Battery joined Brigadier-General Cotton's Field Force, consisting of the 7th and 18th Irregular Cavalry, 12th Punjab Infantry, 21st Native Infantry, Kilat-i-Ghilzais, 2nd Sikhs, Captain Stallard's Battery, and the Hazára Mountain Train, i. e., 2 regiments of Cavalry, 4 of Infantry and 2 Batteries.

The force was divided into two columns. The Mountain train accompanied Colonel Mulcaster.

19th May.

19th June.

The 7th Irregular Cavalry marched to Maeni, left there May 10th, and was struck off the strength of the field force. They picked up the gun left at fort Rockgarh, and arrived at Abbott-abad 19th May.

Chunda Singh, a recruit, is acquitted of a charge of murder preferred against him by the Deputy Commissioner of Amritsar.

Official account of the expedition against the Sittána fanatics :—

After the defeat and death of Syed Ahmed, their founder at Bálakot, the remnant found refuge in Sittána on the Indus. Syed Ahmed was an inhabitant of Bareilly, where he was distinguished among his own people for his learning, piety and zeal. He went on a pilgrimage to Mecca, and returned by way of Biluchistán and Kandahár, and settled down at Eusafzai. After successively winning and losing Pesháwar and Eusafzai, he was eventually slain by Sher Singh along with about 1,300 Hindús (1826). Mukarrib Khan of Panjtar (an old haunt of the Hindustánís in Syed Ahmed's time, and about 4 miles from the border) invited them to his territory. They remained quiet till 1857, when they attacked the camp and killed some of the camp-followers of Lieutenant Home, who had imprudently encamped near the foot of the hills, and an expedition was sanctioned which was sent under Major-General Sir Sydney Cotton, K. C. B. The force reached Selim Khán, the border village, April 28th, burnt Panjtar on the 25th.

1858.

On the 26th a column, 2,076 strong, pushed up the Daraband Pass and destroyed Chinglai, a village containing 1,000 houses, and returned by another route to Selim Khán, leaving a reserve of 950 men at Panjtar and Dakkara. Sir S. Cotton made a night march of 12 hours by a rough and steep path to Mangal Thánna, which he burnt, and blew up the fortified houses of the fanatics. The attack on Sittána was made on the 4th May. Whilst the Amb chiefs crowned the heights, Colonel Becher crossed the Indus, and attacked the Hindustánís, who, abandoned by their allies, fought well losing some 50 killed. Engagements were taken from the Ulmazai and Jadán tribes to prevent the Hindustánís from returning to Sittána, and the troops returned to quarters.

Cholera at Abbott-abad. Battery loses one gunner and one driver ; marches to Deyri ; loses a carpenter and a langri. 9th July.

Battery returns without further loss to cantonments. 1st August.

Mír Ennáiyat Ali joins the Battery as native doctor. 27th Sept. 1859.

A mid-day gun is ordered to be fired. 7th July.

The Battery under Lieutenant Batt marched to Kohát to join the force proceeding against the Kabul Khel Wazírís. The march, 142 miles, took 11 days. 3rd Decr.

The Battery marched to Raisan (21 miles), Túve (16), Súrorge (16), Gundeaurer (9), Biland Khel (10).

The Battery was engaged with the enemy on the 22nd.

The Battery moved with the force to the position occupied by the Wazírís, and was engaged, together with the 1st and 3rd Punjab Infantry, for about two hours against the centre and left of the enemy's position. The Battery pursued the retreating enemy to Maidání supported by the 4th Punjab Infantry, when further pursuit was stopped. 1859.

„ 3 $4\frac{1}{2}$ Howitzer	... 4 common shell and 2 shrapnell.

3rd Decr. The Battery moved on to the heights beyond Maidání, but met with no opposition. Bivouacked at Hassan Khel.

27th The Battery accompanied a force under Colonel Lumsden, rejoining the main force January 3rd, 1860.

1860. The Battery returned to Kohát, 14th January and was ordered to Abbottabad ; stayed three days at Pesháwar.

Total distance, not including the marches in the Wazírí country between 22nd December 1859 and 8th Jannary 1860, was 438 miles.

Official
account.

Captain R. Meham of the Artillery, travelling in a dooly, was murdered at Lattammar, a post at the foot of the independent Wazírí hills, by a gang of 5 or 6 robbers headed by one "Zangi," belonging to the Kábul Khel section of Wazírís. The united numbers of the Wazírís amount to some 37,000 men, and their main divisions are Mahsúd, Ahmedzai Otmanzai. The Kábul Khel is one of the largest sections of the Otmanzai.

1859. The force under Brigadier Chamberlain cross the Kurram at Thall on December 20th, 1859. The enemy were massed at Maidáni, 10 miles west of Thall. December 23rd, the force advanced to Gundiát. As the route narrowed, the heights on either side had to be held whilst the Cavalry and Artillery halted. The left column came on the enemy, who fired at them from behind cover in scattered groups. After some slight skirmishes Maidáni was reached. Large stores of grain and flocks of sheep were captured, the enemy having retreated. The tribe lost about 50 men killed and wounded.

The troops 1 killed and 14 wounded. The principal man concerned in the murder was given up, and executed in the place where the crime was committed.

The Battery leaves Abbott-abad to take part in the Mahsúd Wazíri Expedition on 23rd March, reaches Tánk on the border 13th April (254 miles). Marches were begun at 2 A. M., fever was severe ; 2 gunners, 5 muleteers, 2 syces, 1 sirdár muleteer were left behind at fort Lukki, under charge of the native doctor, Ennáiyat Ali.

1880.
23rd March.

The Battery was engaged, May 4th, at Bangi Wála.
Lieutenant R. S. Abbott joined at Palosúr.

Four muleteers and one dooly-bearer had to be sent back sick.

The marches had to be made very short.

Lieutenant Arbuckle joined at Ghazni K hel.

Two howitzers and one gun came into action on a plateau supported by 1st, 2nd, 3rd Punjab Infantry. The enemy held the heights of the Barára Pass. The guns were considerably below and 250 yards distant from the enemy's position on the ridge. The position was very unfavourable for guns. One gunner was shot through the leg and a mule through the body before the guns opened fire. On the infantry ascending to the assault, the enemy faced them leaving their breast-works. Shell could not be used owing to the proximity of our own Infantry, but an occasional round shot dispersed a group of the enemy here and there.

4th May.

Our Infantry were driven back, pursued by the enemy. The guns were powerless through the impossibility of telling friends from foes.

As it was evident that the enemy if not stopped would pass by on the right of the guns, they were loaded with case and trails brought round to the left. The cartridges were rammed home, but the shot placed in the muzzles to be driven home by order,—a precaution necessary to prevent the gunners from firing before our own troops could get clear. When the Infantry had got clear and the advance stragglers had begun throwing stones at the guns the case was rammed home and fired. Our Infantry rallied at the same time and the enemy were driven back and the ridge carried. The pursuit could not be followed up owing to ammunition running short and a large body of the enemy threatening our flank. The Battery returned to the pass and camped at Bangee Wala. Private Saidun Shah was shot through the calf of the leg whilst sponging out No. 1 Howitzer, and stayed at his post for several rounds till it was observed he was wounded.

The case had recently been filled with leaden bullets on the recommendation of Captain De Bude, Commanding Pesháwar Mountain Train, and to this is due the excellent result of the fire.

May 20th. The Battery marched to Kanigoram, chief town of the Waziris, was not engaged again and returned to Bannu May 20th.

May 18th. One muleteer died of fever.

May 22nd. Battery leaves Bannu on its return to Abbottabad leaving behind the following sick :—

1 Gunner Havildár.	1 Dooly-bearer.
3 Gunners.	1 Camp-follower.
3 Muleteers.	2 Gunners in charge.
1 Syce.

From May 25th marches were made by night, leaving at 8 P.M. Jamadár Pír Bakhsh died of fever at Pundu after a seven days' illness.

One muleteer died at Hurripore of fever.

One gunner of those left at Bannu caught the fever and died.

The Battery marched back with 4th Sikh Infantry, 24th Punjab Infantry, 5th Goorkhas and reached Abbottabad 11th June 1860, total distance $667\frac{1}{4}$ miles in 81 days.

Lieutenant Batt received a Brevet Majority in 1863 and recommends his subalterns.

The Mahsúds, about 12 or 15,000 strong, were constantly in the habit of raiding into the plains, and once they burnt the town of Tánk. After annexation they continued the same courses. The best pasturage being at the foot of the hills, the cattle sent there were constantly being swept off. A Native officer, in 1855, and 12 troopers of Mounted Police, having pursued the raiders too far, were all surrounded and slain. Later on 3,000 of them were only prevented from attacking Tánk by the timely advance of troops. Sir J. Lawrence in that year and again in 1857 recommended an expedition, but various circumstances postponed the measure. On the 13th March 1860 some 4,000 raiders descended on Tánk, but were gallantly met and repulsed by a small force of Punjab Irregular Cavalry, hastily collected under a Native officer.

Official
Account.

April 14th.—A force, consisting of Staff 8, Sappers and Miners 478, Artillery 287, Cavalry 339, Infantry 4,139, total 5,251, 12 guns, and 1,600 levies, assembled at Tánk under Brigadier Chamberlain, and advanced up the bed of the Tánk stream, a difficult road on account of boulders and narrowed in with the ascent. The tribe was required to pay Rs. 45,000, or to allow the force undisturbed passage to Kanigoram, their chief place. They declined both alternatives. As supplies had to be collected, 1,564 Infantry were left at Pallosen, and the force advanced into and laid waste the western part of the enemy's country. On the morning of the 23rd April 3,000 Mahsúds attacked the camp, 500 rushed into the centre sword in hand, causing much confusion. They were driven back and pursued with slaughter for some miles. The enemy then fell back on Barara Tunga. Their position was attacked on the 4th May, all communications with the plains having been abandoned and 15 days' supplies taken. The assault was made on the enemy's left, a steep ascent, defended by breastworks. The assault was not successful, and the Mahsúds charged down through the supports, but their leader being cut down by Captain Keyes, and the fire of the Battery being turned on them, they were repulsed, the work carried and the enemy retreated. The force then proceeded to Kanigoram, on which place a fine was imposed, and as the tribe still refused to give security for good behaviour the crops were destroyed, and another chief town, Makan, destroyed. The force returned by the Bhissora Ravine and reached British territory May 18th 1860. The Brigadier thus describes the services rendered :—"Our shortest march took hours to perform, the safety of our followers, supplies, baggage requiring the heights on both sides to be crowned and held till the arrival of the rear guard ; it was generally noon, though starting at sunrise, and sometimes later, before the new camping ground was reached. On arrival day piquets and escorts had to be supplied and breastworks to be made for the night of substantial profile. Tents were struck by dusk, half the men sleeping accoutred and all in uniform. The march was 160 miles in an unknown and difficult country against an ever watchful foe, notwithstanding we only lost three camp-followers and as many camels."

The force left without securing the submission of the tribe.

A blockade was established, and all trade prohibited. In this interval the Mahsúds committed some serious crimes, but in June 1861 they sued to be allowed to come in, and they entered into the following engagement :—

1860.

- 1.—To maintain friendly relations in future.
- 2.—To acknowledge the liability to seizure for the reimbursement of sufferers from outrage at the hands of members of the tribe.
- 3.—Not to give refuge to criminals escaped from British territory, or to receive stolen property.
- 4.—To pay fines according to a fixed scale for all murders committed or wounds inflicted by members of the tribe.
- 5.—To give hostages for the observance of these terms for one year.

[The above terms have been tolerably adhered to.]

Captain Batt in his letter No. 80, dated 11th October 1861, to the Assistant Adjutant-General of Artillery, forwarded through the Brigadier-General, thus brings to notice the gallant conduct of Lieutenants B. V. Arbuckle and R. S. Abbott in action with the Hazára Mountain Train in the Barara Pass, May 24th, 1860 :—

Paragraph 2. “The enemy were driving our Infantry past the right flank of the Mountain Train, and in order to check the pursuit and prevent them from penetrating our line, the guns were brought round to protect that flank, and the fire withheld until our men had passed out of range. A party of the enemy advanced to attack the Battery, but Lieutenants Arbuckle and Abbott came out to the front of their guns, and there used pistols with effect, and kept the enemy in check, thus enabling the guns to open fire when the last of the Infantry had passed out of range."

No. 86, dated 19th October 1861, applies for a court of investigation to decide a claim for Order of Merit for No. 54, Saidun Shah, Naick of the the Hazára Battery :—

1860.

Paragraph 2. "Saidun Shah was sponging a Howitzer in action with the Wazírís on the 4th May 1860 ; he was shot through the leg, but continued serving the gun for several rounds, and refused to give up the sponge until ordered to do so by his Commanding Officer."

The request was refused on the grounds that a long time had elapsed, and that a court had been ordered to assemble at Bannu on the return of the expedition for the investigation of such cases.

28th Feby.

Memo. No. 277, from Staff Officer, states that there is no objection to the Native officers and men having their families with them, as the Hazára Mountain Train is a local body.

Brigade order No. 213, 1861, publishes No. 174, dated London, 24th April 1861, from Secretary of State for India to His Excellency the Governor-General in Council :—

MY LORD,—The Governor-General's letter dated 21st January last drew attention to the distinguished service of Captain C. P. Keyes, 30th Madras Native Infantry, in having, during the late campaign against the Wazírís, made gallant stand with a small party of 1st Punjab Infantry under his command on a critical occasion in advance of the guns, and this enabled Captain F. A. Batt, Commanding Hazára Mountain Train, to inflict severe loss on the enemy, who in great numbers were pressing the Infantry and advancing to attack the guns.

[Paragraphs 2 and 3 are to the purpose that Captain Keyes is to have a step of Brevet rank.]

4. The conduct of Captain Batt on the same occasion merits and has received the favorable notice of Her Majesty's Government.

1862.
11th March.

Lieutenant R. S. Abbott to do duty with the Hazára Mountain Train.

2nd June.

Brigade Order No. 161, 31st May 1862, referring to Punjab Gazette order No. 17, 1st February 1862, in which the establishment fixed for the Pesháwar and Hazára Mountain Trains is laid down, which are in future each to consist of four pieces of ordnance, states that the organisation will have effect on and from 1st June 1862, and will be carried out with the following instructions :—

The Pesháwar Mountain Train will make over to the Hazára Mountain Train the number of privates required to complete establishment.

The surplus Non-commissioned Officer and men of the Peshawar Mountain Train to be equally distributed between both Mountain Trains and become as Supernumeraries until absorbed.

The Pesháwar Mountain Train will make over the Non-combatant establishment required to complete Hazára Mountain Train.

The establishments remaining surplus after the completion of both Batteries to be paid up and discharged with gratuity.

The establishment of Pesháwar Mountain Train was then 8 guns, 160 mules, 1 Subadár, 2 Jemadárs, 5 Havildárs, 8 Naicks, 90 Gunners. That of the Hazára Mountain Train, 6 guns and establishment kept up sufficient for 3 guns.

1863.
18th Octr.

Bullocks not to be allowed for carriage of ammunition.

19th Octr.

The Battery, Peshawar Mountain Train, 1st Punjab Infantry and 5th Gurkhas, left the Durwand Pass at 8 P. M. and joined the force under Colonel Wylde at 4 A. M. on the 20th. They marched to the Umbeylah Pass when they halted 2 hours. The march was continued for 6 miles where it was opposed by the enemy.

The Guides and 1st Punjab Infantry drove them off, the battery firing 1 common and 2 round shot at 900 yards. The force reached the head of the pass at 4 P. M. The march had lasted 20 hours, and some mules had been travelling for 35 hours, which had been sent for provisions, and the road was steep and difficult for mountain batteries.

22nd Octr.

Sick men, and superfluous camp-followers, &c., are ordered to be sent back to Rosmut, and baggage to be reduced to the smallest limit, tables, chairs and charpoys to be sent away or destroyed. Camp equipage to be returned except pals for Hospital. Men to take 1 blanket and a great coat and no spare clothing for bedding. Cooking pots to be reduced as far as possible. Officers prohibited from giving passes for the purpose of hurrying on their own baggage. A postmaster appointed, but no letters to be written except on urgent business. No firing allowed in camp.

Fifty-one mules, 40 Bunniahs, 4 khalasis belonging to the Peshawar Magazine arrived with spare ammunition for the mountain batteries.

Reconnoitring party attacked, the battery hastens to the relief. The Officer Commanding received instructions from Colonel Hope, Commanding Her Majesty's 71st Regiment, and 2 Guns respectively under Lieuts. Gillies and Abbott were brought into action from 60 to 80 yards from the enemy. The ground in the immediate front was clear, but beyond was intersected by ravines and covered with bushes behind which the enemy were posted. A party of the 20th Punjab Infantry were on the left in advance of the guns which were flanked by the 71st British Regiment.

1863.

About 8-30 p.m., Lieutenant Gillies was shot in the left side, the bullet passing through his chest, and killed, and a most promising young officer lost to the service. The battery remained in position all night, and at 1 A. M. the enemy ceased firing.

Lieut. Gillies killed.

The casualties were—

1 Officer, Lieutenant Gillies, killed, bullet wound.

Pay Havildar Gurmuk Singh severely wounded; severe sword cuts on left arm.

Golundaz Rhodég Khán, dangerous gun-shot wound broke right arm and through left groin, died at Nawa Kila 9th November 1863.

Driver Beylu, gun shot wound through right hand.

1. Mule killed, 1 wounded and will have to be shot.

(Mule shot by order at Nawa Kila.)

Commanding officers ordered to have all their Government cattle and Bazaar carriage, with the exception of a sufficient number to move $\frac{1}{3}$ of the spare ammunition and cooking pots, in immediate readiness to march down to Rostum Bazaar.

26th Octr.

Grain forage is increased for each mule owing to the scarcity of grass.

Lieutenant de Lautour joins the battery.

29th Novr.

Arrangements for the advance of troops—

4th Decr.

5 Mules per 100 Native Soldiers for conveyance of kit and cooking utensils.

7 Mules per 100 British Soldiers for conveyance of kit and cooking utensils.

1863, British troops will wear posteens. Great coat and blanket to be carried on mules.

Native troops will wear posteens, and carry great coat or choga on their backs ; 1 blanket will be carried.

Officers 1 mule and 1 servant each.

All baggage and stores above the scale laid down to be collected ready to be sent to a place in the lower camp which Assistant Quartermaster-General will point out.

8th Decr. Lieutenant de Lautour doing duty with the Hazara Mountain Battery is directed to do duty with C-19th Royal Artillery during the absence of Lieutenant Clarke appointed to act as Commissary of Ordnance or until further orders.

12th Decr. Supplies indented for to last five days.

15th and 16th Decr. The battery, as part of the 1st Brigade, took part under Colonel Turner, C.B., Commanding, in the actions of the Conical Hill and taking of Lattoo [the descent was by a very difficult road into the valley of Umbeylah] and the action of December 16th which closed the operations against the hill tribes.

The half batteries were commanded by Lieutenants Connolly and Abbott, and the practice made was excellent, and prepared the way for the successful rush on the very strong position of the enemy.

The guns which were made to travel by the worst of roads were only enabled to reach the plain in time to take part in the closing operations of the siege owing to the assistance afforded by Lieutenant Lewis Tucker, R.E., and his sappers and miners.

25th Decr. Lieutenant de Lautour rejoins the battery, vice Lieutenant V. A. B. Gillies, deceased.

Battery marches out of the Umbeylah pass.

The battery halted one day at Nawa Kila; joins the Judoon Field Force proceeding to receive the submission of the chiefs.

1863.
26th Decr.

Lieutenant Connolly leaves the battery to join his own at Pesháwar and is struck off the strength.

1864.
6th Jany.

Battery arrives at Abbottábad.

10th Jany.

Official account of the expedition.—It has been before stated [see official account of expedition in 1858] that the Olmanzai and Judoon tribes had been bound over to prevent the return of the Hindustáni fanatics to Sittana. The Olmanzai are a small tribe, but the Judoon number some 4000 and could easily have fulfilled their engagement.

1863.

On their expulsion from Mulkah, Syed Mobárak and the fanatics went to Mulkah on one of the northern spurs of the Mahabun range. It belonged to the Amazai tribe, and was only accessible from the British side by difficult paths. As there was no cessation of the robberies formerly committed in 1861, the Olmanzai and Judoons were blockaded and made to renew their engagements to prevent the crimes but without effect. An expedition was recommended in 1862, but the measure was not adopted till autumn 1863. When the increasing influence of the Hindustánís and their hostility to the British had become more apparent, their numbers which had much decreased after Sir S. Cotton's expedition had now risen to about 1000. Early in July 1863 they reoccupied Sittana and other villages of the Olmanzai, who with the Judoons made no resistance; indeed, the Mansur section are said to have invited them. Failing a due warning to expel the intruders, the two tribes were again subjected to blockade.

Immediately opposite the Olmanzai, on the left bank of the Indus lives the Khan of Umb, Akram, between whom and Sayad Mobárak there is an hereditary quarrel. He is particularly exposed to injury from his neighbours, trans-Indus, 15th July.

1863. because his chief place Umb, together with small flat strip of country, lie on the right bank of the Indus. Besides Sayad, Akram Khán has other enemies in a portion of the Hassanzai tribe, who had never forgiven his father Jehándád for seizing some of their tribesmen who were concerned in the murder of Messrs. Carne and Tapp in 1852 [see account of expedition in 1852]. In that year the Hassanzais laid waste Akram's lands cis-Indus, whilst the Hindustánís attacked him trans-Indus. Accordingly in 1863 one of the first acts of Maulah Abdullah was to address threatening letters to the Khán of Umb, whilst the Hassanzais destroyed his border hamlets in the Shingli valley, and killed several of his men. These outrages are more than suspected to have been committed by Kábul Khán, son of the Hassanzai chief, Hassar Ali, at the instigation of his father-in-law, Alla Muhammad Khán, nominally a British subject, who is chief of Agrori, to the north-west of Taunawul.

On the 7th September the Hindustánís led by Maulah Abdullah, and accompanied by a principal Judoon Malik, crossed our border with the intention of attacking a body of the Guides at Topi, but were repulsed. They also fired across the Indus at our picquets.

As regards numbers the Hindustánís are far from being formidable, but they might easily become so owing to the influence, the same as Sayad Ahmad obtained in the time of the Sikhs, over the neighbouring tribes. In their persistent teaching of war against the Infidel they raise a cry which might, as in the Sikh time, rally the divided tribes to united action.

The position of Mulkah is not ill-chosen for influencing the tribes, it has easy communication with the Amazais, Chiggarzais, Muda Kheyl, Hassanzai cis-Indus, Khudu Kheyl, Olmanzai and Judoon. The people of the Chumlah Valley are close at hand, and thence access to the Bunair,

Swát and Bajour valleys is practicable. It is by no means certain that the Hindustánís and their aggressive tenets met with universal favour with the tribes. Their allies mostly used them for purposes of their own, and by the great Eusaffzai, their patriarch, their religious dogmas and innovations were regarded as heretical.

Attacking Mulkah resolved itself into two courses. The approach through the Khudu Kheyl, crossing the Mahabun by the Surpatti pass ; or by the Sarkhawi pass and Chumlah Valley.

The latter was adopted. The force under Brigadier-General Sir Neville Chamberlain consisted of—

Artillery	...	{ Half battery C-19 R. A. Hazara Mountain Train. Peshawar " "
Cavalry	...	{ Detachment of the Guide Cavalry. 11th Bengal Cavalry.
Infantry	...	{ Detachment of Sappers and Miners. 2nd Regiment British Infantry. 8th " Native "

Moving with secrecy the troops seized the crest of the Sarkhawi (better known as the Umbeylah) pass on the afternoon of 20th October. The narrowness of the pass prevented the immediate advance into the Chumlah Valley ; also the baggage did not join till October 23rd. The Bunair tribe had not resisted the occupation of the pass in any force. They had received a proclamation stating the object of the expedition, but they also knew the strength of their position and the danger in approaching it.

On the halt of the troops they were encouraged to attack, but feared also for their own Valley. They collected in a pass, a few miles to the left of the line of advance, but their hostility was not openly shown till the return of a reconnoitring 1863. party up the Chumlah Valley, past their village of Umbeylah.

23rd Octr. The Hindustánís with the Northern Mahabun come up.

28th Octr. The Akhund of Swát with his people.

9th Decr. A large body of Bajaurís.

General Chamberlain's position necessitated the holding of outlying crags and hills which were successively attacked, the enemy keeping up a fire of many hours' duration on one post, then creeping up under cover and assailing them with showers of stones and attempting to carry them at a rush sword in hand, always bringing up large bodies of men against exposed positions. In these attacks they suffered great loss, and met with occasional though transient success.

20th
November.

After the 20th November they ceased to attack and their numbers dwindled down, but were largely reinforced by Fyz Talab Khan of Bajour and Ghuzzan Khan of Dhir on the 12th December, and it is probable would have again acted on the offensive, had not General Garvoile, who succeeded General Chamberlain on the latter being wounded, anticipated them. Our force was now raised by reinforcements to about 9000 men. The village of Lallu was attacked and taken by Her Majesty's 101st Fusiliers, four hundred of the enemy being killed and wounded. During the attack of Lallu the enemy made counter-attacks on the remaining troops and the camp, but were repulsed with loss.

13th
December.

The force descended to Umbeylah, which was abandoned, but this day a sharp resistance was offered by the Hindustánís, 200 of whom were killed.

The effect of these successes was immediate. The Bajours and Dhiris fled at once, the Bonérwáls submitted, and agreed to disband their forces, and to send a party of men to burn Mulkah, giving hostages meanwhile for the performance of their engagement. They further bound themselves to expel the Hindustánís from the Bonér, Chumlah and Amazai lands.

The burning of Mulkah was carried out by the Bonér-wáls under the supervision of Colonel Reynell Taylor escorted by the Corps of Guides.

Fresh engagements were taken from the Judoon and Olmanzai tribes, who were employed to destroy Mundi, a village near Sittana where the Hindustánís on their return in 1863 had built something like fortifications.

The Muddu Kheyl, Amazai, and Hassanzai tribes subsequently came in and subscribed to the engagements required of them.

The remnant of the Hindustánís found refuge among the trans-Indus Hassanzai on the confines of Swát and in Bajour, and though offered a free pardon by Major James have not yet availed themselves of it. The machinery employed by them for obtaining recruits has been exposed. It has been shown that the natives of Patna have for a series of years continued, by inculcating the duty and merit of waging war against the unbelievers, to prevail upon the lower classes in Bengal to subscribe funds, and to furnish recruits for the Sittana colony. At first the infidels were the Sikhs, latterly the British.

The losses sustained by Her Majesty's forces in these prolonged operations were serious :

Rules for advancing against the enemy.

1. The advance to be gradual, not too quick, but increasing in pace. The skirmishers in taking cover must never stop the general and steady advance of the line.

29th September.

Up a hill-side or spur.

2. The skirmishers will get as near as possible, keeping under cover. If easily assailable, should be taken at once with a simultaneous rush and a cheer; if otherwise, time should be given for the Artillery to come up.

Attack of sungah or abattis.

3 Should it be seen that the enemy are leaving their defences and descending the hill-side to drive off our troops, an attack under any circumstances must be immediately made. The initiative of attack must be always with our troops.

If the enemy leave their defence to attack.

4 The great object to be held in view is to shake the enemy's position with Artillery before the Infantry assault. The Artillery can be used for this purpose in two ways—

Use of Artillery.

(a). When the Infantry have taken up cover near to a sungah or abattis, and are waiting the final order for the assault.

(b). During the slow but continuous advance of the skirmishers previous to the assault.

Note.—It must be borne in mind that no more time than is necessary must be lost in making these dispositions, any delay is always attributed by these savages to fear, and this false idea gives them courage.

5. Care should be taken that the final rush is not made from too great a distance, or the men will arrive out of breath, and as the men advance, the louder the cheer, the bugle call and the playing of the band, the better. The skirmishers, supports and reserves should all advance and cheer together.

The charge or assault.

6. Uniformity of movement is not desired, nor is it desirable. It should be impressed on the men that the requirements of hill campaigning are fulfilled when they adhere to the one great rule, viz., each company is to hold together, and follow its Captain or leader, and the men should never separate from their companies; companies of course keeping

Principle of movement on the hillside.

with their regiments as the Captain leads. The men should follow in loose order : the nature of hilly country does not admit of precise movement.

When halted.

7. Corps or companies should at once sit down or lie down to rest. The men gathered in groups round their Captain in line or dispersed according to the nature of the ground. All bugling to be strictly prohibited except under the following circumstances,—1st, when the assault or charge is made on the enemy's position ; 2nd, the call from Head-quarter of Brigade, on all which occasions the sounds should be preceded by the regimental call. The above remarks apply equally to reserves and supports as to skirmishers.

Skirmishers and supports.

9. When ascending a hill in face of an enemy, each corps should be prepared to support, if actually in action, the one in front without any orders from Head-quarters of Brigades should it be apparent that assistance is required.

The enemy if attacking must be met with a counter-charge.
In like manner supports must assist skirmishers without waiting for orders.

Skirmishers and supports.

10. Skirmishers must not advance too quickly, the supports and reserves must be well up to the front.

General support to be rendered to an advance.

11. When an advance of skirmishers has been ordered up any particular hill or spur in the face of the enemy, no one can do wrong in aiding such advance. The success of hill fighting is mainly dependent on the judgment, skill and energy of Regimental Officers.

Withdrawing a picquet or covering party.

12. Doing this in presence of an enemy, a few smart men should be selected to remain on the crest with orders to make as great a show as possible, to keep the enemy in check, while the main body retires to its new position. On a signal from the main body, these men should rapidly rejoin so as to avoid observation by the enemy.

Baggage animals to be separated in case of night alarm ; troops to stand to their arms half an hour before day-break till the sun had risen. Water to be found, but no forage.

Major de Bude mentioned in despatches G. G. O. November 1868.

Official account of Black Mountain Expedition.

Early on the morning, 30th July 1868, a party of independent Patháns and Swatís of the Black Mountain, viz., Chigarzais, Parári Sayads and Deshís, attacked a post of the police lately established in Oghi, a village in Agror. The outrage, it was discovered afterwards, was instigated by Alla Muhammad Khán, Jagírdár of Agror, our own subject, who had recently been deprived of police powers in consequence of grave misconduct. The raiders were gallantly repulsed by the police with a loss of six of their number, but the police office was plundered and several constables were wounded.

A force under Colonel Rothney, Commanding 5th Gurkhas, was promptly despatched from Abbott-abad, and arrived on the night of the 31st, where it was joined by a contingent under the Khán of Amb, a feudatory of the British Government. Meanwhile in Agror and the valleys around disorder was rife ; large bands of plunderers occupied British territory ; villages were burnt ; property carried away. A number of the peaceful inhabitants who attempted to defend their homes were slain, and the force was constantly attacked. A Revenue Survey Party in the Kághán Valley under Mr. G. B. Scott was attacked by a section of Allais. Had it not been for the prompt action of Colonel Rothney and the bold front shown by his force and the conspicuous loyalty of the Khán of Amb, who led several dashing charges against the enemy in person, Agror would have fallen a prey to the marauders.

An expedition thus became necessary, and as the country inhabited was mountainous and difficult, and it was possible that more tribes beyond the Indus would join the enemy, the invading force had of necessity to be a large one. A force under Major-General Wylde, c. B., was collected at Oghi, and the Mahárāja of Kashmir was also called upon to furnish a contingent, which he did with readiness.

The force left Oghi, October 3rd, and occupied the Machai peak after an ineffectual resistance on the part of the enemy, and returned to British territory on the 22nd idem. The submission of all the tribes was secured, except the chief Syad of Parári, and a petty chief named Shal Khán of Tahkd, who fled. Some villages of the Patháns were destroyed, and fines levied on the offending Swatís. List of killed and wounded :—Europeans, 1 wounded ; Natives, 35 wounded, 9 killed.

Major de Bude goes on four months' general leave of absence. Lieutenant de Lautour appointed to officiate as Commandant.

15th November.

The steel 7-pr. R. G. 150 lbs. arrive for the Battery, February 28th. The equipment is changed under the superintendence of Lieutenant de Lautour. The Brigadier-General remarks in his inspection :—

1869,
20th May.

"The Brigadier-General was much pleased with the appearance of the Battery and its exercise and practice with the new guns on the hill-side. The latter was excellent, and much credit is due to Lieutenant de Lautour, on whom, in the absence of Major deBude, had devolved the difficult task of adapting the new equipment and armament of the Battery."

1 Dooli-bearer.

Full strength 163 ; 40 sick, 27 absent on furlough, and one-third of the Battery were in hospital when orders for the march were received. Beyond rendering the men hors de combat the fever did not kill. Only one man was lost.

13th October

Lieutenant-Governor of the Punjab presents Gunner Ahmad Khán with a turban and a piece of cloth in token of his approval of the gunner's conduct in interfering to protect a policeman who was being beaten by some Patháns in the Abbott-abad bazár, and who was himself attacked in consequence in a brutal and cowardly way by a number of Patháns when returning to the lines in the dusk on the same day.

8th November.

Brigade Order 254, 6th November 1869, appoints Assistant Bugle-Major Emám Bakhsh, Bugle-Major to the Artillery of the Frontier Force.

The two guns under Lieutenant deLautour return to cantonments, and Major deBude publishes in Battery Orders :— The admirable condition of the mules, notwithstanding the excessive cold to which they have been exposed, is very highly creditable to Lieutenant deLautour and a proof of the unremitting care he must have bestowed on his detachment.

21st January.

The duties performed by the force in Agror were limited nearly entirely to police duties. One village was burnt, Shahtút, no resistance being encountered.

Sir A. Wilde, K. C. B., C. S. I., is succeeded by Brigadier-General Hughes, C. B.

4th February.

Two guns out at practice in the district under Colonel deBude are suddenly ordered to Agror.

15th April.

Two guns ordered out at once from cantonments to reach Agror by April 18th.

3rd May.

The Battery join the escort of the Lieutenant-Governor of the Punjab, Sir Henry Durand, are inspected by him at Kaki on the 11th, leave the escort at Torbela, returning to Abbottabad on the 23rd.

10th November.

Left Division vacate their old barracks and move into what are known as the Pesháwar Mountain Battery barracks.

28th February.

Battery leaves for Kohát in course of relief. Major deBude remarks that it takes 52 minutes to reach the only bit of exercising ground for a battery at Kohát, and that when there the utmost that can be got is 9 seconds up hill and 9 seconds down again. In the hot weather 104 minutes cannot be spared in reaching and returning from the Battery exercise ground. It is a mistake to think this is the kind of ground provements in Mountain Batteries, A. G.'s letter No. 97, Simla, 22nd January 1861.

The Brigadier-General publishes following Order B. S. O. No. 13, 21st September 1872 :—

The Brigadier-General having been informed that Lieutenant-Colonel F. R. deBude and Lieutenant-Colonel A. Gillespie, R. A., have been permitted to resign the service of Her Majesty, feels that it is due to the long service of those officers with the Punjab Frontier Force, the one in Command of the Pesháwar and then the Hazára Mountain Batteries, and the other in Command of No. 2 Light Field Battery, to record the regret with which he witnessed the departure from it of two such excellent officers. In this feeling of regret he is sure he is joined by all in the force who have been associated with them during their long career on the frontier.

2. Not only on service with the Kabul Khel, Mahsúd Wazírís, and Ambeyla expeditions has it been the good fortune of Lieutenant-Colonel deBude to win the cordial approbation of his superiors, and the acknowledgment of Government, he has also the satisfaction of knowing that in all the practical details, on which depends so much the efficient working of a Mountain Battery, he has combined zeal and interest with unwearied exertion with the happiest results. The present high state of Mountain Batteries is due to the combined efforts of Lieutenant-Colonel deBude, Majors Butt and Hughes.

3. Lieutenant-Colonel Gillespie, &c., &c.

4. In taking leave of these two officers and in thanking them for their past labours in maintaining and adding to the reputation of the Force with which they have been so long connected, Brigadier-General Keyes ventures to hope that in that honourable retirement which has been conceded to them, they will long enjoy that health and welfare which a long residence in India and the North-West Frontier has so justly entitled them to.

Lieutenant Swinley leaves the Battery.

27th
January.

Lieutenant C. C. Lindsay, R. A., appointed 2nd Subaltern. G. O. 50 of 1874. Extract from B. S. O.

9th
February.

1. The Brigadier-General has learnt with feelings of much regret that, owing to failing health, Captain R. S. Abbott, late Commandant, 2nd Light Field Battery, will be unable to return to India and resume his appointment.

2. Captain Abbott served with the Hazára Mountain Battery during the expeditions against the Mahsúd Wazirís in 1860 and the Hindustáni fanatics in 1863.

3. Transferred in 1863 to the Command of No. 3 Light Field Battery, his health was ruined by a long devotion to his duty, which kept them out late in the year with a force employed on the Dera Ismail Khan Frontier.

4. To never failing energy in the cause of duty, whether in cantonments or in the field, Captain Abbott added an amiability of disposition which endeared him to all ranks, and the Brigadier-General feels sure that in thus publicly expressing his regret at his departure he is only anticipating that which will be felt by all his comrades in the force.

October. Two guns ordered to Assam. Report their arrival in Calcutta, October 19th. Take over two steel 7-Pr. R. G. 150 lbs with equipment for cooly carriage. Leave Calcutta by rail for Kushtea. Battery embarks on board the flat Gogra, attached to the river steamer Jaboona. Arrive at Gauhati. Tezporé (14th), and Dikrung Mukh (17th), the point of embarkation.

11th November.

Officers.—Captain de Lautour, Lieutenant H. R. L. Morgan, Jemadár Sadulla Khán.

Men.—The Gunners Right Half Battery (Muhammadan).

The Half Battery arrive at Narainpur, the base of operations of the force which was being assembled to punish the Duffla tribes for raiding into our territory.

23rd November.

Strength of the force :—

2 Guns Hazára Mountain Battery.

64 (2nd Company) Sappers and Miners.

250 each 42nd and 44th Native Infantry.

200 each 43rd and 16th Native Infantry.

The Battery moved on 8th December, arriving at the farthest point (Station 9) 2nd January. It remained halted there till 24th January, when it returned to Station 1 Narainpur, 7th February. The weather was very severe, and it rained every day. The object of the campaign was effected, viz., the recovery of the captives.

1875.

The route followed was a Duffla track. The whole force being in single file, through the dense tree jungle. Officers' ponies went everywhere and fed on bamboo leaves.

Camping-ground had to be made by felling trees and building huts. Each man was served out with a "kookri." The climate was damp, temperature cool and pleasant.

Each gun and carriage required 8 coolies, a pair of wheels 3, a box 2. Each load was attached to a bamboo pole from 6½ to 10 feet long.

The general health was good, but at Station 6 the men suffered from a form of dysenteric diarrhœa.

The Battery left Narainpur for Dikrung Mukh, was conveyed by famine steamer to Danseri Mukh, where it embarked on the Prince Albert and Ganges flat. It arrived at Tezpore (28th), Gowhatty (1st March), Goalundo (8th), Calcutta (9th).

ber. Battery takes part in the movement from Paia to Shendi Camp, was present at the attack and occupation of Jummoo, chief village of the Jowákís, belonging to the chief Bobaure Khán, and at the attack of Gharuba belonging to the chief Mushki.

The attack on Jummoo and the withdrawal from Gharúba were well executed manœuvres. In the former, troops were brought at daylight from their bases three miles apart into line. The outposts were surprised and forced back, Jummoo being carried at a rush. In the latter, the Battery from a well selected position covered the withdrawal of each detachment from the different positions taken up in the advance.

- 19th December. The Battery left General Keyes' force in the Shendi Valley to join the force under General Ross on the Pesháwar side of the Jowáki territory. Leaving Kohát, it marched to Fort Mackeson, 22 miles, and arrived at Sheregasha camp, the headquarters of General Ross' Force on the 23rd instant. The Battery took part in the attack of Pustaoni through the Bori Pass, the march through the Jowáki territory to meet General Keyes' force at the Nava. Kulah defile, the Shendi Valley, reaching Kohát 23rd January 1878, and its camp at Sheregasha on the 24th after a march of 28 miles through the Kohát Pass.

G. G. O. 85, 25th January 1878.

Jemadár Sadullah Khán is struck off the strength of the Battery on promotion to Subadár No. 5 Garrison Battery.

Extract from Battery Orders—

In publishing to the Battery the order promoting Jemadár Sadullah Khán to Subadár No. 5 Garrison Battery, the Officer Commanding wishes to make known his satisfaction with the well-earned promotion that has befallen that officer. Sadullah Khan's high qualities have ensured for him the friendship and respect of those with whom he has so long served, and the Officer Commanding is glad to take the present opportunity of expressing his high sense of the value of the loyal assistance always rendered to him by the Subadár.

The Battery marches to Pesháwar.

28th February.

The Jowákís tender their submission and acceptance of terms imposed. 4th March

Extract from Battery Orders,—

- 2 Mules of Right Half Battery under Lieutenant Wace, slightly girth galled.
- 1 Mule of Left Half Battery under Lieutenant Lindsay, swelling on the side.
- 3 Mules of baggage, swelling on the side.

Considering a march of 28 miles terminated with some very hard work, especially heavy on the Right Half Battery, the Officer Commanding considers great credit is due to the officers for the supervision exercised.

Ammunition expended—95 common, 18 shrapnell.

Numbers of killed and wounded in the two forces were 101.

Complimentary order by the Brigadier-General Commanding Punjab Frontier Force on the departure of Captain deLautour, 25th August 1879 :—

“ The services of Captain E. J. deLautour, R. A., Commandant No. 4 Hazára Mountain Battery, having at his own request been placed at the disposal of His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief, the Brigadier-General Commanding cannot permit this officer to leave the force with which he has been associated for nearly 16 years (including field service in the campaigns of Umbeyla, Black Mountain, Duffla, Afghánistán) without placing on record his appreciation of the manner in which he has carried out his duties on all occasions. The very efficient state of the Hazára Mountain Battery when under Captain deLautour's command as acknowledged by the Field Force Commanders in the Duffla, Jowáki and Afghán campaigns testifies to his high qualifications as Battery Commandant, which position he has held for about seven years, and Brigadier-General Godby, whilst regretting the loss to the force of the services of so zealous an officer, assures Captain deLautour that he carries with him his best wishes for success in his future career ”.

Extract from B. O. by Major-General C. Gough, V. C., C. B., Commanding 2nd Brigade, 2nd Division, Northern Afghanistan Field Force, Siah Sang, Kabul, 5th August 1880.

The Brigade which has so long been under the command of Brigadier-General C. Gough, V. C., C. B., having been broken up in consequence of a necessary re-distribution of the force, and as some of it may not come under his command again, the Brigadier-General considers it his duty to place on record his thorough appreciation of the admirable and soldier-like manner in which the troops have on all occasions conducted themselves, the gallantry and steadiness invariably shewn by all in the numerous skirmishes and encounters in which they have been engaged, and the cheerfulness with which all the hardships inseparable from campaigning in the depth of winter has been borne, while the discipline of the troops has been throughout excellent.

The service rendered by the Brigade in the defence of the Passes at Jagdalak and the advance of the small force in aid of the Sherepore garrison, invested by immensely superior numbers, is of a nature not to be forgotten. Since then it has been almost constantly in the field, and has continued to render important service to the State.

Brigadier-General Gough desires therefore to return his sincere thanks to the officers of his staff, Majors Gerard and Kinlock, and to Colonel Daunt, 2nd Battalion, 9th Regiment ; Colonel Battye, 2nd Gurkhas ; Colonel Rowcroft, 4th Gurkhas ; Colonel Norman, 24th Punjab Native Infantry ; Captain Broadfoot, Hazára Mountain Battery, and to the officers and men of their corps for the aid they have rendered him and he wishes all success and good for them in future.

Captain Broadfoot records—

“During the time I was in command of the Battery in Afghánistán I received every assistance from the officers, non-commissioned officers and men, and have much pleasure in recording the good spirit which animated all ranks. I take this opportunity of placing on record how much the efficiency of the Battery was due to Lieutenant Wace and Subadár Gurmukh Singh. After the first phase of the Afghán war, a great deal had to be done for the Battery. and though the time was short, so efficiently was the work done under arrangements by Lieutenant Wace that during the whole of the second phase the Battery was in a thoroughly serviceable condition.”

- 24th Novr.
25th Novr. Arrangements made for landing, but the enemy had abandoned the position owing to heavy artillery fire of the previous evening.
- 27th Novr. Ava forts reached. The force lies anchored in the river facing the Burmese army drawn up on either bank. After a few hours' delay the Burmese army lays down a few of its arms and delivers over the forts. The Burmese army then disappear into the jungle with the remainder of their arms to turn up afterwards as dacoits.

Pagoda fort at Ava disarmed. The old brass guns were pitched into the river and the wood-work burnt.

28th Novr.

Battery reached Mandalay 4 P. M. and proceeds at once to the palace to form part of the escort over King Theebaw. Owing to the distance ($3\frac{1}{2}$ miles), break-down of the coolies and darkness of the night, the Battery got split up into three parts while passing through the city. Lieutenant Honner's Division was fired at. The entire Battery did not arrive at the palace till 9 P. M.

The King was removed to the fleet.

29th Novr.

The Battery remained at the palace till December 18th, when it embarks to join expeditionary force to Bhámo.

The right Division joins the column which occupied Shewbo. No resistance was met with. Coolie carriage proved a failure.

No enemy appeared, and Bhámo was entered and the Burmese army taken over.

1886.
1st Jany.

Battery remains at Bhámo till February 19th, when Captain Wace was ordered to take command of a river expedition and proceed in country boats to Mogoung.

Lieutenant Honner and left Division embark in country boats, leaving Lieutenant Birch in command.

19th Feby.

The expedition was most successful. [For details see Diary of Burmese War by Officer Commanding the Battery].

Lieutenant Honner returned from Mogoung after 10 days.

29th Feby

The men of the Battery and the Punjab coolies did excellent work in the expedition.

Captain Wace and Lieutenant Honner mentioned in despatches 3rd Brigade by Brigadier-General Norman.

7th April.

Commencement of disturbances with Ponkan Kachins.

Lieutenant H. B. Brownlow arrives with mule and driver establishment from Abbottabad. The animals in excellent condition after a journey of three thousand miles.

No casualties on the way.

Gunner Nizám Dín while going with the dák to the steamer was attacked by Burmans, and lost his left hand.

20th March.

Battery move from tents to huts. Bhámo fortified by a strong stockade.

Lieutenant S. M. Renny and centre Division march to Mansi and join the column against the Kachins on the Chinese frontier of Yunan under Captain Wace of the Battery. Actions were fought on 12th and 13th April.

Casualties—Captain Wace wounded.

Gunner Jowár Singh „

Driver Gaur „

One mule and 2 ponies killed.

The Kachins were defeated, but the column had to retire owing to number of wounded and want of supplies. [For full particulars see Diary.]

April.

Lieutenant Renny and centre Division remain at Mansi till 18th, when they are relieved by Lieutenant Birch and the right Division. Sickness almost crippled the Battery.

30th April.

Captain Wace invalided to England.

Lieutenant Honner appointed Officiating Commandant.

Lieutenant Honner promoted Captain from 20th January 1886,—London Gazette, 12th February 1886.

A second expedition against the Kachins. Lieutenant Renny with the left Division joins Lieutenant Birch with the right at Mansi. Captain Honner proceeds in command of the guns. The head-quarters and centre Division remain at Bhámo under Jemadár Akbar Ali. Owing to the amount of sickness no men remain to man the centre Division. 19th May.

The expedition is under the command of Colonel Fitzgerald, 26th Punjab Infantry, and Major Cook, Deputy Commissioner, Bhámo, goes with it as Political Officer.

Strength of the force, 500 rifles, Royal Welsh Fusiliers, 26th Punjab Infantry, and Sappers and Miners, with 8 mounted Infantry and 4 guns Hazára Mountain Battery.

The rains commenced with the expedition, and as the country was densely wooded and the men had no tents, they suffered greatly from fever and dysentery.

The column got as far as Paoung Young 8 miles inside the hills, at the mouth of the Ponkan Kachin Valley.

The road was stockaded in many places, but the stockades were turned, and the enemy retreated before the troops.

Major Cook compelled the column to retire on political grounds, the result being that the Kachins fired on us the whole way back and the expedition was considered a failure.

Casualties in the Battery—1 horse killed.

On a previous reconnaissance from Fort MacCartie, Mansi, under Lieutenant Birch, Lieutenant MacCartie, 26th Punjab 6th May.

Infantry, was mortally wounded, and Lieutenant Birch's syce severely wounded. The enemy were beaten off.

29th May.

The Battery returns to Bhámo. Owing to the fever among the men, artificers had to be employed as drivers, and the work of the Battery was with difficulty carried on. Large flies, the size of a bee, and horse flies, attacked the mules and added considerably to the sores and galls due to their want of condition owing to their long marches by sea and land ; leaving the mules and drivers for six months without an officer at Abbottabad had completely unhinged them for work.

When the rains set in the Battery was laid up for the summer at Bhámo. On two occasions columns attempted to move out, but were prevented by the flooded state of the country. The exposure, want of meat and milk, the crowded state of Bhámo intrenchment, and the filthy tanks within the works, all led to the result that 12 men of the Battery died, and 67 were invalided to India during the summer. The number of men in hospital at one time was 104. The few men remaining were of necessity much over-worked. Only one Division could turn out in marching order.

The mules at this time were in excellent condition, and the Battery was congratulated by the late General Sir Herbert Macpherson on its excellent state. They were fed on tall reed-like grass and grain made up of 2lbs. each of gram, bran and paddy, total 6lbs.

In June and July an outbreak of "surra" carried off over 160 of the brigade transport ponies. The Battery escaped till the autumn, when about 10 transport ponies were carried off by the disease. One Battery mule was attacked in November.

6th July.

Lieutenant Renny invalided to England.

Lieutenant F. H. S. Giles joined from 3-1 Scottish Division, Royal Artillery, from Lahore, as Officiating 3rd Subaltern, vice Lieutenant Renny. 1st Septr.

Lieutenant T. W. G. Bryan joined from No. 2 (Deraját) Battery for duty vice Lieutenant Honner, promoted. 16th Septr.

Lieutenant C. D. Scott rejoins from furlough in England. 10th Novr.

Ten gunners and 25 driver recruits join, and 13 old Havildárs, gunners and drivers invalided to pension list. 16th Septr.

A party of Chinese from Yunan, together with the Shans and Kachins, attack Bhámo intrenchment by moonlight. They rushed the heavy Battery bastion of 5-1 Scottish Division, Royal Artillery, killed a gunner, burnt a barrack, and killed one Havildár and one Sepoy, 26th Punjab Infantry. Two Chinese were killed, one wounded and one captured. 14th Novr.

During the summer at Bhámo it was necessary to instruct the Battery in every detail owing to the separation of the gunners from the drivers for six months, and to the number of recruits, namely 91, on service !!

To avoid confusion a Standing Order Book was compiled by Captain Honner and Lieutenant Birch, in which the orders laid down in Manual of Mountain Artillery were strictly adhered to in every possible detail.

The Standing Orders were compiled from the Standing Orders of the Regiment. English names only were used in dealing with the ammunition, and Hindustáni words of command were discontinued.

The lascar pál tents having rotted on service, the Battery received a new equipment of mountain service single fly tents.

They pack better and Burmese ponies carry them, but the pāls give better shelter.

[For fuller account of the Battery history during the Burmese war see diary which was compiled weekly and sent to the Officer Commanding Royal Artillery at Mandalay.

10th Decr. Lieutenant Bryan left the Battery to rejoin his own.

16th Sept. The Battery was inspected by His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief Sir F. Roberts, V. C., G. C. B., &c., R. A., and the Commanding Officer was thanked for the excellent condition of the mules and general turn out of the Battery.

Non-commissioned officers and men from Nos. 1, 2, 3 and 5 Batteries join for duty to replace casualties caused by sickness.

Lieutenant Birch came into action with the right Division against the Wuntho's forces at Mawlu near Katha.

1887.
2nd Jany.

Captain Honner proceeds on sick leave.

Army Circular, India, dated 1st December 1886. Men enlisted for one Battery will be liable to serve in any of the other three Batteries of the force, and may be transferred from one Battery to another in time of war.

Captain E. C. Wace was granted the D. S. O. for services in Burma.

February. Annual practice carried out at Bhámo.

24th Feby. Captain Honner rejoins from sick leave.

Orders received to return to India, and to hand over mules and equipment to No. 1 Bengal Mountain Battery. The Hazára Battery to halt at Ráwalpindi and take over mules and equipment of No. 1 Bengal Mountain Battery.

The left Division under Lieutenant Scott accompanied a flying column proceeding to the attack of the dacoits who were stockaded at Sawaddi, but returned without coming into action.

2nd March.

Sixteen miles were marched in 18 hours including a halt at Sawaddi. No galls.

A Jubilee allowance of Rs. 60 is granted to the Battery in honor of Her Majesty the Queen's 50th year on the throne.

March.

Forty-eight non-commissioned officers and men leave the Battery for service with the Burma Police Levy.

No. 1 Bengal Mountain Battery arrive at 2 P. M.

24th March.

The Battery leaves Bhámo at 5 P. M., having handed over mules and equipment. Reached Katha 27th.

25th March.

The Battery leave Katha en route to Mandalay.

28th March.

Lieutenant F. H. S. Giles leaves the Battery to do duty with No. 1 Bengal Mountain Battery.

28th March.

The loss of the mules which have been so long in the Battery and which were perhaps the best in the service was greatly felt by the Battery.

Battery arrives at Myingyan and proceeds to Prome, but owing to the lowness of the water has to proceed by rail to Rangoon.

5th April.

Battery was under orders to embark, but owing to a supposed case of cholera on board embarkation was not carried out till 22nd instant. No. 1 Bombay Battery also embarked.

19th April.

Lieutenant S. M. Renny rejoins the Battery on arrival at Calcutta.

Battery entrained, arrived at Ráwalpindi May 5th.

25th April.

6th May.

Mules and equipment of No. 1 Bengal Mountain Battery taken over from Captain Walford, Royal Artillery. Equipment new, but mules inferior to those handed over.

G. O. C. C. dated 27th April 1887. Lieutenant Giles is appointed 3rd Subaltern No. 1 (Kohat) Mountain Battery, and is struck off the strength of the Battery from that date.

9th May.

Battery leaves Ráwalpindi.

18th May.

Arrives at Kohát after a very hot march.

Notwithstanding the number of recruits and the soft condition of the mules, the animals arrived without a gall.

On arrival drafts from other Batteries, were sent back to rejoin their own Batteries.

4th July.

Lieutenant Renny appointed to the Gun Carriage Factory at Fattengarh, leaves to take up his appointment and is struck off the strength of the Battery—G. G. O. 29th July 1887.

2nd August.
